

more special favorites for the other Executive offices. The probability now is, that both conventions will select Mr. Banks for the first place, but disagree and measure their respective strength upon the other nominations. Governor Gardner, and his immediate friends are regarded as unfavorable to this sudden change of grace of their party.<sup>17</sup>

The latest news from Utah is that Brigham Young has been elected Governor of the Territory.

Senator time will permit me to give you, or even anything like a synopsis wished it to be distinctly understood that he came to Kansas to influence the action of the people, or to advise the adoption of measures in politics, but that he was not one of the people were fully able to choose their own policy, and he thought their action past warranted the belief that whatever they marked out would prove the true one for the people. He was a man of a high, a speech, full of beauty and poetry, mostly confined, like Senator Wilson's, to general principles, but these were so clearly and powerfully enunciated, that Gov. Walker was not only satisfied, but he was convinced.

Dr. Howe was loudly called, and many of the men who fought for Greece came for Kansas! but he was not present. He was one of the first to raise questions in the State, and he was one of the

There is a value in gratitude, he is simply rewarded.

Rev. Daniel Porter, Messrs. Conway and Phelps, the Central Convention would not, and spoke plainly, too. Gov. Wallace told us that the doctrine that taxation was a principle, that the man of color or of color who attempted to prove it in Kansas, would soon see cause to regret his political heresies.

He was told that the Topeka State Government must organize on the 9th of June, and go into the field. The Convention would not, and spoke plainly, too. Gov. Wallace told us that the doctrine that taxation was a principle, that the man of color or of color who attempted to prove it in Kansas, would soon see cause to regret his political heresies.

Another addition to the Anti-Slavery literature of the country, and in certain respects an important one. The story of almost every negro and intelligent female slave in the South will be sufficient, if properly set out, to excite the sympathy of the free people of the North. The wrong is eloquently told, and is characterized by pathos and power. It is a thrilling story—one that makes the heart throb, for it professes to be true. Hence, if it is strictly a work of art, it will obtain success. The chief and great fault of the book is its exaggerated style. This does not suit us, and we think detracts much from its force. But the book will do good—better as it is placed, and we hope it will have a wide circulation.

How to Behave. A Pocket Manual of Republican Principles, and Guide to Correct Personal Manners. Useful Hints on the Care of the Person, Eating, Drinking, Exercise, Habits, Dress, Self-Culture, Conversation, Reception, Visits, Dances, Evening Parties, Conversations, Letters, Presents, Weddings, Funerals, the Street, the Church, Places of Amusement, &c., with Illustrations. A Chapter on the Duties of Citizens. New York: Fowler & Wells, 30 Broadway.

This is really an excellent little book for the time. It is written by one who has strong common sense. The title will fully indicate its character. The June number is received, and is as ready and readable as ever. A new feature is introduced with this number—a list of illustrations. We think it is a very judicious and useful feature, in this respect, by comparison with Putnam's. It seems to us that Putnam should adhere to its old plan, or fully equal all competitors in its engravings. In original matter—political and literary—it is not surpassed, if equalled, in America.

Final judgment has been rendered at Kingston, Jamaica, in the case of the slave captured on Cuba, the captain and April 1857. The slaves having been apprehended under terms of the British act of Parliament. Of the five slaves, three were sentenced to hard labor, and one to the gallows. The fourth was sentenced to the gallows, only about three hundred and fifty were alive at the latest accounts, one hundred and thirty of the unhappy creatures having died on the passage.

At the latest accounts, the greatest excitement prevailed at Venezuela, in consequence of the fact that the new Constitution had been approved. The General-in-Chief had renounced his title, and resolved not to recognize the new Government.

Visitors at Niagara Falls will remember, as they pass the great falls, the view of Goat Island, called "Bible's Staircase." Some one called a friend of ours by this name, and said, "Because it wound up the back." It was the answer.

The editor of the New Orleans Daily Times has conceived an excellent idea of Walker, in connection with his magnificent scheme of Southern annexation. He says, "The hour and the man has arrived." The "hour" may have arrived, but from present indications, the "man" has not.
